Helma Zukas should have enough to do at the library, with one of the staff members retiring and a team participating in a city-wide relay race. I was raised in Cleveland until one day my daddy took me to Albuquerque where I spent one miserable year at the University of New Mexico on a scholarship.

I had to purchase this one, as my local library was missing this one, so it will be a Want to Read. Currently Reading Read. My three young people's books were written when my children were young.

The main characters are fully fleshed-out and the plots are thick, but easy to read. As a librarian I did not appreciate the characterization of the main character here as an uptight, compulsive person. Mix in the return of her troubling friend Ruth, running from love-gone-wrong, and things can only get worse.
