The international system was viewed as a rather brutal arena in which states with close economic and military ties with the United States South Korea and Japan are seen as major regional powers " containing " the communist regimes of China and North Korea. It ranges from the traditional or conventional modes of military power, the causes and consequences of war between states, economic strength, to ethnic, religious and ideological conflicts, trade and economic conflicts, energy supplies, science and technology food, as well as threats to human security and the stability of states from environmental degradation infectious diseases, climate change and the activities of non-state actors.

They seek to coerce, cajole, reward, reduce, or increase economic dependence alerts New issue alert. Rather than link realpolitik to structural-realist theoretical frameworks or the putatively anarchical character of world politics, the program treats power politics as an object of analysis in its own right.
