Factors like how much you are earning and how many financial dependants you have are also critical. But investing in stocks should not be equated to trading in the stock market, which is a speculative activity.

Essentially, there are two 'layers' of activity. But if the goal is negotiable, which means that it can be pushed back by a few months, then investing in equity mutual funds or stocks can be beneficial. Since there are so many types of investment vehicles, it is normal for an investor to get overwhelmed. When a bond is bought, the yield will be equal to the interest rate, but it changes as the bond matures and its price varies. If you buy at a discount and that discount reduces or narrows due to increased yield, if the yield on a year gilt rises from 0.
